THE

QUARTERDECK

NAVY FAP PROGRAM

RECENT CASE TESTS EFFECTIVENESS

The natural concern of parents for an unexplained medical condition of their young child recently set in motion the response of the Family Advocacy Program (FAP) at NPS.

The program is designed to address the prevention, identification, treatment and reporting of child abuse and neglect and spouse abuse. In the recent case, a PRIMUS doctor could not rule out the possibility that the child's initially unexplained medical condition was due to abuse. The doctor took appropriate action by reporting the possibility in the medical record and by alerting officials at NPS. The Naval Investigative Service (NIS) is assigned responsibility for investigating these cases, and responded immediately. Since the child had recently returned from NPS Sunday day care facilities, NIS' investigation included interviews with day care providers and information provided by two additional medical specialists. The end result -- within 48 hours the incident was attributed to an explainable medical condition, not child abuse. The situation demonstrated the effectiveness of the Family Advocacy Program. Some of the key elements were:

- * alert and concerned parents who took appropriate action.
- * a conscientious doctor who followed prompt and appropriate reporting procedures based on the evidence at hand.
- * a command investigative and reporting procedure that was guided by concerns for safety and confidentiality.

The Family Advocacy Program strives to stop or prevent abuse from occurring through awareness training and a supportive multi-disciplinary system. The program includes the medical treatment facility, law enforcement, social workers, the command and you, as a concerned parent, friend or co-worker.

This is also a time to praise the NPS child care providers. Their top priority is to care for children in a safe and wholesome environment. The providers are highly attuned to the vigilance necessary to prevent, recognize and stop abuse. They also go through a local and National Agency background investigation prior to being considered for hire. There is a strict, adhered to requirement of providers-per-children ratio. Standards for cleanliness and safety of spaces, furniture and toys are rigidly enforced. During the recent incident, the providers were fully supportive of the investigation. They knew it was a key part of the required response that supports the overall program.

Jann DeVilbiss, a licensed clinical social worker, recently joined the FSC (SEE "FAP PROGRAM", PAGE TWO)

MANDATORY SEPARATION DRUG ABUSE

A change in the Navy's Drug Abuse policy will affect all first-time drug abuse offenders from E-1 up.

The policy went into effect Sun., Mar. 1. All Navy personnel in paygrades E-1 and above who commit an initial drug offense will be disciplined as appropriate, screened for drug dependency and processed for separation. Individuals that are separated administratively or punitively, who are medically diagnosed as drug dependent, shall be offered Veterans Administration Treatment at the time of separation.

Also, self referral for drug abuse is an incident of drug abuse and does not prevent a member from being administratively processed for separation.

For the policy to apply to drug abuse incidents identified through urinalysis, samples must be obtained on or after Mar. 1.

The new policy is contained in NAVADMIN 018/92.

Russian military and defense industry officials visited NPS last week. Vice Adm. Vladimir S. Kryazhev (center, left photo), deputy head of the naval directorate's General Staff, and Capt. First Rank Nikolai I. Vlasov (right foreground) met with NSA's faculty and students. After hearing a student's thesis research on Congressional decision-making and its role in defining U.S. military force structure, Kryazhev remarked, "So maybe the results of your thesis will help us (as we deal with our new parliament)." Electronics engineer Iosip Drize (standing at right, right photo) responds to questions on the new SA-15 missile system. The fully digital surface-to-air missile is scheduled to replace the SA-8 now in use by the Russian army. Dr. Veniamin Efremov, constructor general of the Russian defense industry, is seated between Drize and their translator.

TAX CHECK-OFF VETERANS MEMORIAL

The California Veterans Memorial Commission has launched a campaign to raise funds for the construction of a memorial to honor all Californians who have served in the nation's armed forces.

The commission was appointed by the governor and the legislature to spearhead the campaign to raise the necessary funds to build the historic monument.

An important element of the campaign is a tax check-off program. Taxpayers receiving a refund may designate that a portion of their refund be transmitted to the Memorial Fund. Those who must make an additional tax payment may add a designated amount to that payment. The tax check-off campaign line is contained in the voluntary contributions section of the California State Tax Return as the "Veterans Memorial Account."

SAFETY

POISON PREVENTION WEEK TRAGIC CONSEQUENCES

Each year 5,000 people die and a million are accidentally poisoned by household products; 800,000 of these victims are children. Each year Americans learn about the threat of accidental poisonings during National Poison Prevention Week. This year it will start Sunday and run through Sat., Mar. 21. There is now a network of regional poison control centers to help prevent and treat accidental poisonings. Call 1-800-662-9886 for more on the network.

Three causes of accidental poisonings are cleaning products, household chemicals and medications. How and where poisons are stored is very important. Here are some tips to help prevent poisonings:

- * Keep all poisons out of the reach and sight of children.
- * Store poisonous products in their original, labeled containers. Never transfer them to another container like a soft drink bottle.
- * Always read the label before using household products.
- * Discard containers carefully. Call the public health and sanitation department for advice.
- * Use Ipecac syrup only if recommended by a poison center or your physician to induce vomiting if a poisoning occurs.
